About MPDC

Madison Park Development Corporation (MPDC) is a pioneering nonprofit organization committed to strengthening the Roxbury community. Founded in 1966 by residents and community activists, MPDC emerged in response to the devastating effects of urban renewal, determined to restore and revitalize the neighborhood.

What began as the Lower Roxbury Development Corporation evolved into MPDC, one of the nation's first community-based organizations to independently develop affordable housing for low- and moderate-income residents. For almost six decades, MPDC has been a catalyst for positive change, championing housing, economic empowerment, and community engagement to ensure Roxbury remains a vibrant and thriving place to live.

The Haynes Family Scholarship

The Haynes Family Scholarship Fund is named in recognition of a beloved family staple in the Roxbury community for over 50 years. Vincent Haynes, one of the founding members of MPDC, was a community activist at the forefront of Roxbury's resident-led organizing efforts against urban renewal during the 1960s. Roy Haynes is an internationally acclaimed musician. Reverend Michael Haynes is the pastor of Twelfth Baptist Church in Roxbury. Haynes House, MPDC's 131-unit apartment building in Madison Park Village, is also named in honor of the family.
